

Abstract of the Invention

The invention provides a method for increasing the magnification of a lens 5 without changing the dioptric power. The method of the invention uses a measurement or an estimate of an individual's retinal function in designing the lens to provide the magnification needed by the individual without increasing the dioptric power of the individual's lens.

10

15